A Minnesota mother-of-two was arrested after she allegedly had sex with two teen boys after an argument with her husband.

Allison Leigh Schardin, 38, was having a "staycation" with her family in Roseville at the same hotel hosting a boys hockey team from Colorado, a criminal complaint stated.

Schardin allegedly struck up a conversation with the two boys in the hotel's hot tub on the night of January 14, complaining about her marital problems.

Minnesota court records revealed her husband Anthony had filed for divorce on December 18, 2023.

After the two teens returned to their room, the 38-year-old sent a Snapchat to one of them saying she had an argument with her husband and wanted to head to his room, according to local reports.

She then allegedly met with the two boys in their room, asked about their ages and noted they could have been her children.

The criminal complaint claims Schardin started discussing "sex and stuff" and asking the boys questions about their sexual lives before purportedly getting into bed with them.

She then allegedly began performing sexual acts on the boys asking them to reciprocate while a third boy watched.

The boys said they felt pressured by the woman and eventually asked Schardin to leave their room.

Police said the woman later showed up at one of the team's hockey games and texted one of the boys after they had returned to Colorado.

The 38-year-old restaurant served was arrested on February 1 and charged with third- and fourth-degree criminal sexual conduct.

Schardin allegedly admitted to having sexual contact with the boys and kissing them.

She also admitted to asking the pair for a condom but "claimed she wasn't going to go through with it," the complaint added.

The woman is due to appear in court on February 5.
