

That Bitch Who Murdered Her Boyfriend Sentenced to Two Years' Probation

Women live their entire lives on tutorial mode.

They can literally just go around stabbing people, and face virtually zero consequences.

It wouldn't be so outrageous if they didn't constantly complain about how hard their lives are, and how they are such victims. That complaining really just makes men want to rape them and slit their throats, then dump them at the side of the road.

New York Post:

The California woman who was convicted of stabbing her boyfriend to death 108 times during a “cannabis-induced psychosis” received a slap on the wrist Tuesday for the brutal killing.

Bryn Spejcher, 33, was sentenced to two years probation and was ordered to perform 100 hours of community service after being found guilty of killing her new boyfriend, Chad O'Melia, according to the Ventura County Star.

Chad O'Melia

Ventura County Superior Court Judge David Worley ruled that Spejcher “had no control over her actions” when she entered into a psychotic episode and stabbed O'Melia, 26, 108 times in his Thousand Oaks apartment on May 28, 2018.

Experts for the prosecution and defense both found that the marijuana bong hit given to Spejcher threw the woman into the deadly psychotic episode.

Wow, if the government thinks marijuana causes women to totally lose control of their actions and start stabbing people, it's kinda crazy that the government legalized it, huh?

“From that point forward, she had no control over her actions,” Worley said, according to the outlet.

Chad O'Melia's father, Sean, accused Worley of being biased and claimed the judge set a dangerous precedent following his ruling.

“He just gave everyone in the state of California who smokes marijuana a license to kill someone,” the grieving father said.

That's very true.

Except, it's not true.

Men who commit crimes and then blame marijuana will still be punished.

But women can kill anyone.
