

IOC Allows 2 Women Who are Technically Men to Participate in Women's Boxing

To be clear – these are hermaphrodites, not transnies.

They were born with chromosomal issues that gave them certain male sexual characteristics.

They're probably not as strong or as fast as real men, but they certainly are much better than women.

The Guardian:

The International Olympic Committee has defended its decision to allow two boxers who failed testosterone and gender eligibility tests at the 2023 world championships to compete in Paris.

Imane Khelif of Algeria and Lin Yu-ting of Chinese Taipei (Taiwan) were disqualified from the 2023 women's world championships with the International Boxing Association president, Umar Kremlev, saying DNA tests had "proved they had XY chromosomes and were thus excluded".

The IBA said it had made the decision "following a comprehensive review and was intended to uphold the fairness and integrity of the competition".

However the IBA is not running the Olympic boxing competition in Paris. The IOC has confirmed it is happy for both fighters to compete under the less strict gender eligibility rules that were in place for the Tokyo Games in 2021.

"Obviously I am not going to comment on individuals," the IOC spokesperson Mark Adams said. "That's really invidious and unfair. But I would just say that everyone competing in the women's category is complying with the competition eligibility rules. They are women in their passports and it is stated that is the case."

Khelif will meet the Italian Angela Carini in the 66kg category on Thursday, while Lin faces an unnamed opponent in the 57kg category a day later. The former world champion Barry McGuigan has been one of many people to express his unease about the decision, calling it "shocking".

Women's sports are retarded, so anything that works to further destroy women's sports is a good thing.

Here's the Algerian one beating up some bitch from Mexico. A legit tranny would've won by KO in the first round.
